

DEITZ REFUSES TO SURRENDER

Will Not Accept Offer of Wisconsin's Governor.

WILL FIGHT TO THE FINISH

Besieged Man Absolutely Declines to Accede to the Terms Proposed by Governor Davidson and Hurlis De fiance at the Sheriff's Possession—Will Be Given Another Chance Before Attack Is Made on Cabin.

Winter, Wis., Oct. 7.—Under conditions of twilight and scenery more dramatic than any illusion to be found on the artificial stage, John Deitz gathered his family about him, dismissed the attorney general of the state of Wisconsin and the secretary to Governor Davidson, refused absolutely the conditions of surrender contained in a letter to him from the state executive, waved his arms high in the air in a gesture of defiance of his enemies and from lungs of marvelous strength sent forth his challenge in tones which were distinctly audible to the sheriff and his deputies who were awaiting his answer at the edge of the tamarack forest, fully 700 yards away. Then he turned and entered his cabin and the sheriff entered his rig for the long ride back to Winter.

The sheriff's face was set in an expression in which there was nothing of cruelty, but of a sudden realization of the responsibility thrust upon him. The special representatives of the governor, whose coming to the outlaw on such a mission is one of the remarkable features of the case, walked slowly toward the clearing at the Thornapple toward the darkening mass of trees, and their coming was watched by silent deputies with set faces. It was a moment of moments, for the realization was borne in to every one that there was a man of surpassing courage, who had deliberately and after hours of pleading cut himself away from the world and placed half a hundred gun muzzles against his breast.

Madden has traveled steadily toward this climax which has sobered men and women the whole town through. The opening hours of a day of wonderful clearness, the absorbing topic of conversation was the result of the visit of G. W. Froelich of St. Paul, who went out to try to persuade the outlaw to surrender himself peacefully to the examination of the law.

Called Off Hostile Demonstration.

Mike Madden, sheriff of the county, called off all hostile demonstration pending the announcement of the result of the conference. Besides he was expecting the arrival of Colonel O. G. Munson, secretary to Governor Davidson, and Frank L. Gilbert, attorney general of Wisconsin, who came down here at the instance of a number of telegrams to the governor protesting against the published intentions of the sheriff and deputies to take the Deitz cabin by storm if necessary.

The two visitors arrived. A few minutes afterward Froelich drove in behind a sweating team of horses with the announcement that while Deitz had refused to surrender he had expressed a desire to talk with the governor or with an authorized representative of him.

Madden, Froelich and the two men from Madison went into conference. At the end of it was announced that three of them, leaving out the sheriff, would visit Deitz, Mr. Gilbert bearing with him a letter from the governor promising a fair and impartial trial, assuring him that no violence would be offered and offering him legal counsel by the state, with the privilege extended to Deitz of choosing his counsel at the state's expense if he desired. The party set out for the cabin at Cameron dam and every rig in the village was pressed into service to take most of the population to the edge of the woods, where, 700 yards away, the cabin could be seen squatting silently on the hill, with the washing blowing domestically in the wind, the chickens pecking at the sand in the yard and the American flag floating from the top of the pole near the door. The flag was hoisted just before the arrival of Munson, Gilbert and Froelich and the meaning of it was the cause of much speculation, whether it signified that Deitz was still flying the same colors which he recognized as a truce or that he was about to surrender. The three visitors had already arrived and entered the cabin.

Statement by Attorney General.

After the failure of the peace conference Attorney General Gilbert made this statement on reaching the edge of the clearing:

"I can only say that Deitz declined to come in on the guarantee of the governor contained in a letter which I delivered to him. The offer of terms was made because of telegrams from friends and sympathizers scattered over the country who seemed to be under the impression that if he was assured a fair trial and protection from violence he would surrender and an armed attack would be avoided. Deitz received us in a very kindly way in general except that at times he became wrought up over what he believed to be the wrong done him."

ATTEMPT MADE ON LIFE OF A PRINCE

Young Chinaman Tries to Shoot Royal Visitor.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—George Fong, a member of the San Francisco organization of the Young Chinese association, an alleged revolutionary body, was arrested by secret service men just as he was about to shoot Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the emperor of China, who was boarding the steamer Chiyo Maru to sail for home. Fong confessed that he intended to kill the prince.

A loaded revolver was found in the pocket toward which his hand was moving when the detectives seized him. The detectives had received information that Fong would bear watching and had him under observation all the time the prince and his retinue were boarding the vessel.

The prince's life was declared forfeited to the revolutionary cause, according to Fong, at a meeting of a Chinese association held while Tsai Hsun was in San Francisco two weeks ago on the beginning of his tour of the country.

WHOLE TOWN WAS IN PERIL

Fire Causes Heavy Property Loss at Lakefield, Minn.

Lakefield, Minn., Oct. 7.—Fire destroyed $50,000 worth of property in Lakefield. An entire business block was burned. The lumber yard of the C. L. Coleman Lumber company, the Gage block, the entire stock of farm implements owned by Gage Bros., and three residences were destroyed.

The fire broke out in a barn near the railroad tracks. There was a strong wind and in a few moments the entire block was in flames. Wind carried the sparks and cinders to all parts of the village, and many houses caught fire.

The prompt work of the fire department saved the town and confined the fire to the block where it originated. It is thought the fire was started by sparks from a passing freight train.

BROWNE ON THE WITNESS STAND

Tells Story of the Election of Senator Lorimer.

ENTERS A SWEEPING DENIAL

Minority Leader of the Lower House of the Illinois Legislature Declares He Is Innocent of Any Wrongdoing in Connection With the Election of the Chicago Man.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—For the first time under oath Lee O'Neill Browne, Democratic minority leader of the lower house at Springfield, told his story of the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate. Browne was tried twice on a charge of bribing Representative Charles A. White to vote for Mr. Lorimer, but did not testify in his own behalf. The first trial resulted in a disagreement and the second in acquittal. He has still to stand trial on an indictment making similar charges, returned at Springfield.

There was a stir when Browne's name was called by the senatorial committee which is investigating Mr. Lorimer's election. The witness talked composedly, entering a sweeping denial of any wrongdoing in connection with the election. He is a lawyer, and his attorney, Thomas Dawson, found little to do in advising his client as to his answers. The matter of securing Democratic votes for Mr. Lorimer, the witness stated, was first mentioned to him in a very casual way by Representative Daniel Shanahan. Later—about three weeks before the election—Speaker Shurtliff came to his room and asked him, in effect, how many of his following among the Democrats would be willing to vote for Mr. Lorimer.

"He asked me how many of my 'boys' as my following was designated, would vote for Mr. Lorimer," related the witness. "I told him things were in such a condition—the session had dragged on so long—a good many of them wanted to end the deadlock. As for myself, I could not tell how I would vote, not having considered the matter."

"I told Mr. Shurtliff, and later Mr. Lorimer himself, that no Democrat would vote for Mr. Lorimer with my consent unless they—Speaker Shurtliff and Mr. Lorimer—would give me their word that no Democrats should vote for Mr. Lorimer until his election was assured."

Thirty Democrats for Lorimer.

Browne testified that he saw Senator Lorimer and Speaker Shurtliff frequently after having decided to support the former and that he talked to many Democratic representatives, including White, Beckmeyer, Shepherd, Link and Clark, all of whom testified before the senatorial committee.

"I told Mr. Lorimer that, according to my best information, there would be thirty Browne Democrats who would vote for him," said the witness.

Reverting to the election Mr. Browne denied that he had given Link or Beckmeyer any money in the Southern hotel, St. Louis, June 21, 1909, as testified to by them.

"If Beckmeyer said you gave him $1,000 that day he lied, did he?" asked Attorney Austrian.

"No, I wouldn't say that," said Browne. "Had I been through what Beckmeyer went through an indictment held over my head I might have said what he said. I wouldn't want to say he lied."

"Did you give Link any money?"
"No."

Another witness of the afternoon was Thomas Curran, a Republican legislator, who testified in rebuttal of the testimony of White. Curran said that White approached him at Springfield and asked him to hold out the women's ten-hour bill which was in the committee of which Curran was chairman.

"White told me to hold out that bill because there might be something in it for us," said the witness. "Later White asked me if there was nothing doing on the Lorimer election. I told him I did not know and observed that he as a Democrat ought to know if there was anything doing. 'Why do you ask?' I inquired of him and he replied, 'I think there was and I think Browne has double crossed us.'"

On cross-examination Curran said that he thought if there was any money used "White as a Democrat would know it."

DEADLY GERMS IN THE WATER

Typhoid Kills Two Threshers and Two Others Are Near Death.

Hitchcock, S. D., Oct. 7.—Two men lost their lives as the result of drinking water from a threshing engine tank near Hitchcock, while two other men had narrow escapes from death from the same cause.

The men were members of a threshing crew. All four contracted typhoid fever as the result of drinking water from the engine tank. Those who died were Richard D. Smith and Frank Niner, the latter being the owner of the threshing outfit. Mr. Smith had resided at Hitchcock twenty-six years. He is survived by his wife and three brothers.

BRITISH LINSEED TRADE HIT.

American, Argentine and Russian Exports Partly Blamed.

The industry of linseed oil crushing received a serious setback in England during 1909, and two factors were at work which enormously diminished the output of oil.

One of these was the greatly increased use of the soy bean and the other a heavy decrease in the supply of linseed from Argentina, the United States and Russia, which amounted to nearly 25 per cent of the shipments of 1908 and was in no way counterbalanced by a small increase in the shipments from Calcutta.

MINER BURNED TO DEATH

Fire in His Cabin Also Causes an Explosion.

Custer, S. D., Oct. 7.—A coroner's jury which investigated the tragic death of J. J. Oinas, a Finn who lived in a lonely cabin, returned a verdict that he came to his death by the burning of his cabin and the explosion of powder stored therein.

When persons went to the scene of the fire and explosion they found the remains of Oinas in the ruins of his cabin. His head, arms and legs had been burned off. Oinas drank heavily and it is believed that while in this condition he accidentally set fire to his cabin. As he was a miner he was in the habit of using powder and dynamite caps and a quantity of the explosive was in the cabin at the time.

BLASTS KILL TWO MINERS

Men Employed on the Iron Range Meet Death in Explosions.

Duluth, Oct. 7.—Frank Hunter, a miner at the Buffalo-Susquehanna property near Hibbing, Minn., was killed by a blast. He was about thirty and unmarried. Hunter went to investigate a blast that had delayed going off for some reason and let go as he reached the charge.

Simon Mestrie received injuries from a blast in the Corsica mine which caused his death. He was thirty-two and married.

ONE-FIFTH OF FLEET DOCKED

Taft Changes Plan of General Annual Repair.

Perhaps the most important saving of all in the navy department under the Taft administration has been accomplished by the reorganization of the fleet itself into divisions of five homogeneous ships. Out of each division there is always one ship under repair and four at sea.

Compare this with the old system and the advantages are apparent. Formerly the entire navy went to the yards twice a year. The result was that for several months in the year the nation was without a fleet. In the second place there was a great ebb and flow of labor in the navy yards which militated effectively against the employment of the best class of labor.

Under the new system there is always a fleet in being, and the work at the yards, being constant, attracts the best kind of men.

KING MANUEL
AT GIBRALTARBALLOON IS LOCOMOTIVE
ON AUSTRIAN RAILROAD.Tedious Trip Up Mountain Is Made Novel and Safe by Gas Bag.

A railroad on which the motive power is supplied by a balloon is certainly a novelty. Such a railroad has been constructed in Austria under government supervision. Its object is to carry passengers up and down Hochstaufen mountain at Bad Reichenhall, a watering place in the Austrian Alps.

The top of this mountain affords a splendid view, but the climb to the summit is tedious and uninteresting. Accordingly, it was decided that the tourists who visit the place would appreciate the labors of the captive balloon devised to carry them to the summit.

The balloon was made to run along a track built at the side of the roadbed. A trailer with many wheels clasps this wooden rail, or track, and the passenger car is fastened to the trailer. The operator sits in the car, with a cord swinging between him and the balloon by which he can regulate the supply of gas. Safety devices are at hand in case of accident.

Before the car starts up the mountain the balloon is charged with sufficient gas to enable it to ascend to the summit, and when the top is reached and all is ready for the return journey some of the gas is permitted to escape, whereupon the car starts down hill, its speed being checked by the retarding effect of the gas still left in the balloon.

It was not until the most rigorous investigations had been made and the comparative safety of this method of journeying demonstrated that permission was given to build the railroad. There are many novel safety devices to prevent accident.

The tank and generator from which the gas is drawn answer the double purpose of supplying power for the railway and furnishing gas for illuminating the town.

LOYAL TO THE MONARCHY

Thousands of Troops in and Around Lisbon.

Lisbon, Oct. 7.—While the city of Lisbon is in the hands of the revolutionists and a republic has been proclaimed with Theophile Braga as provisional president, and other prominent Republicans constituting the ministry, there are still many thousands in and around the capital who are loyal to the monarchy. The monarchists include a portion of the Lisbon troops and troops massed in entrenched camps about the city. The provisional government is taking steps to enforce allegiance.

The people of Lisbon are ignorant of the events in the provinces and therefore it is not known whether the movement is broad enough to sweep the country. Nevertheless the Republicans are proceeding as though the transformation of the monarchy into a republic was an accomplished fact, to stand for all time.

The provisional government has issued a communication to the foreign powers notifying them of the proclamation of the Portuguese republic. No serious obstructions are expected to be offered by the provinces to the new regime. The government has already appointed civil governors for the provinces.

The announcement was made that King Manuel, the Queen Mother Amelie and the Duke of Oporto are aboard the royal yacht Amelie, which has already sailed for England. The government has taken measures to protect them. It was further stated that the queen mother would proceed to Italy.

DEATH AROUSES SUSPICION

Circumstances Show That Woman May Have Been Murdered.

Grafton, N. D., Oct. 7.—That there are certain circumstances surrounding the death at Seattle of Mrs. W. A. Lovejoy, formerly of this city, which make it appear that her death might have been caused from some other source than accident, is the information received in Grafton. Mrs. Lovejoy, at the time she was drowned was carrying a purse in which there was about $100, but this has not been found, although a search has been made for it. Mrs. Lovejoy's hat, which was found the morning after she was drowned, indicates that there had been a struggle. The verdict of the inquest, however, was accidental death.

Portuguese Royal Family Under British Protection.

SITUATION IS VERY DOUBTFUL

Thousands of Troops Loyal to the Monarchy Are in and Around Lisbon—Neither the Republicans Nor the Royalists Know Anything About the Conditions in the Provinces.

London, Oct. 7.—That King Manuel is safely out of Portugal is disclosed by dispatches from Gibraltar, which say that he landed there Thursday night in company with the queen mother, the dowager queen and the Duke of Oporto. The royal family of Portugal is therefore now under British protection.

A rigorous censorship still prevents the details of occurrences in Lisbon from becoming known, but dispatches that have come through by way of the frontier indicate that the fighting in the streets of the Portuguese capital was of longer duration and of a more severe nature than at first reported.

Nothing is known of Thursday's events at Lisbon and this in connection with the statements made by Premier Canalejas to the Spanish chamber of deputies that the government was not cognizant of the establishment of a provisional government at Lisbon and that reports had come to him that fighting in the streets had been renewed, together with the Lisbon dispatch that a portion of the entrenched troops had refused to adhere to the Republicans, shows that the provisional government has been obliged to take precautions against a loyalist attack.

The situation in the provinces also is very doubtful. A delayed dispatch from Oporto gives brief details of demonstrations held there on the day after the rising occurred at Lisbon. Since then, however, word from Oporto indicated that quiet had been restored.

Notification has been sent to the foreign powers by the provisional government of the proclamation of the republic.

CROSS LAKE NEWS

The new school house in Allen township, is not quite completed, so Miss Beth Cochran will not commence her school on Oct. 3d, as reported.

E. R. Eastman has purchased Oliver Feister's oxen. It seems like old times to see those oxen being "gee hawed" about by his father, Dan. Oxen was the team of our boyhood. Being so busy on Sept. 20th taking down the names of the twelve voters, at the primary, we did not hear of Grandma Mudge's return from Brainerd, where she had been on a three weeks visit with her son. She reports having a splendid time.

We were at the county fair at Pequot last Thursday. It was the middle day and there was not much doing, which gave us more time to examine and pass judgment. After taking dinner at Anderson's hostelry, which, by the way, was doing land office business, filling the hungry, we passed by the United States separator and turned into the pie building, depositing 25 cents and getting a ticket. We then proceeded about the room. Fancy needlework first caught our eyes, stacks of it, and we wonder when the women found the time to do it. From these our eyes kept wandering to the pie table, where in tempting array were pies, cakes, cookies, bread, biscuits, everything in the pastry line, and only guarded by a few yards of cheese cloth. The pastry was flanked by jars of butter and cans of fruit and jelly.

Reluctantly we left the pies and things and wandered to the vegetable building. After the first glance in this department our inferior mawllary dropped and did not regain its normal position until we had left the building. A hy-bred, half turnip, half cabbage, first fell to our notice. We wanted to sample it. There were beets for cattle and human, sugar beets, all of mammoth proportions. Onions as large as plates and strong as a horse; potatoes enough to last a family all winter, and the pick of the patch, all varieties; squashes, such a row of them, black, green, yellow and giants every one; pumpkins that would make a New Englander stare in wonder. The impression we had when we regained the sidewalk was, "We certainly ought not to starve with such vegetables in the cellar. But the corn, we think, made the best showing, ears like sticks of stove wood and stalks 12 to 14 feet high, and the watermelons, so large that even a Missourian would gaze in wonder.

DID REAPER KING STEAL LAURELS?

Cyrus H. McCormick Accused of Robbing Father of Fame.

RELATIVES IN CONTROVERSY.

Compile Evidence to Show That Son Should Not Be Placed in National Hall of Fame—Patent Rights Said to Have Been Bestowed by Parent. Witnesses of First Deed All Dead.

When Cyrus H. McCormick took to himself the credit for the invention of the McCormick reaper he lifted from the brow of his father, Robert McCormick, the laurel which genius had placed there, and also took from the memory of his parent the honors which history gladly would have paid him. In the view of other members of the family who have set out to right what they believe to have been a wrong.

"We, the descendants of Robert McCormick, claim that by his great contributions to the arts and crafts in the contest for human honors he has won the golden chalice, gaining the victor's crown, and earned a place immortal in the Hall of Fame."

That is the contention made by the descendants of Robert McCormick, who died in 1846, and to sustain it they have collected and published a series of letters, statements and affidavits, all tending to show that Robert McCormick, and not his son Cyrus H., was the inventor of the McCormick reaper.

Gives Invention to Son.

From this evidence it appears that the father, after many years of experiments, built a successful reaper in 1831; that during several years thereafter he manufactured and sold, with the aid of his son Cyrus, a large number of these machines; that at the urgent request of his wife, when his last years were coming on, he gave the invention to his oldest son, the understanding being that all of the children should share in the profits, and that in 1834 Cyrus H. McCormick obtained letters patent on this invention.

It is shown also that in later years Cyrus H. asserted his father's inventions were failures; that he (Cyrus) built a successful reaper in 1831, and that it was that machine which was patented. Other members of the family, however, claim Cyrus H. is supported only by his own statements, while the other children of Robert, several other relatives and neighbors and acquaintances of the father attest to their belief that Robert McCormick was the real inventor of the reaper.

John T. Campbell of the Soldiers' home at Lafayette, Ind., however, says the first reaper was a failure and that Cyrus should be given credit for remedying its defects and producing a successful machine.

First Reaper a Failure?

"I have a statement from an eyewitness of the trial of the reaper on the farm of Captain Humphreys in Virginia."

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

Will be Held in This City Nov. 23d, as Well as at All Other Free Delivery Offices

FOR POSITION OF FOREST CLERK Receipt of Applications Will Close Nov. 5th—Position Pays $100 Per Month Salary

George W. Grewcox, local secretary of the civil service commission, is in receipt of a communication from the district secretary informing him that a civil service examination will be held in Brainerd on Nov. 23d, and also at all other free delivery post-offices in the state. The letter reads: Office of District Secretary, St. Paul, Minn.

Oct. 4, 1910. Local Secretary, Brainerd, Minn. Dear Sir:

You are advised that examination will be held in your city and also at all other city delivery offices in your state on November 23, 1910, for the position of forest clerk (male) at entrance salary of $1,100 or $1,200 per annum in the forest service.

Owing to the large number of places where the examination will be held it will not be practicable to furnish all the local secretaries with the application blanks, instructions, etc., but all persons wishing to take the examination should apply at this office for such blanks and necessary instructions. Special attention is called to the fact that the receipt of applications will close November 5. It is desired to secure as large an eligible register as possible, as there will probably be an extensive demand for employees of this class, hence each board is requested to make special efforts to secure a good number of suitable applicants.

Very respectfully, J. M. SHOEMAKER, Secretary.

Compliments Eveleth and its Health Commissioner for Progressive-ness Shown

The Duluth Herald contains under date of Oct. 6th the following reference to the visit of Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane:

"Dairies, butcher shops, alleys and various public buildings are being visited today by Mrs. Crane, the municipal sanitary expert, who arrived yesterday from Duluth. Tonight she will sum up the result of her Eveleth visit in an address at the Othello theatre, then leave for Brainerd, where she will speak next.

"Mrs. Crane is the guest of Dr. C. W. Moore, having been met by him and Postmaster J. C. Poole at the depot yesterday morning and taken in an automobile to Mr. Moore's home. Later in the day she motored through the town, looking over many places, winding up at the high school, where she addressed an immense audience.

She told the pupils of the effective aid rendered by school children in New York, in a sanitary campaign, and of sanitary conditions in her home town, Kalamazoo, Mich.

"The city was commended on the fine appearance of the local schools, and the speaker stated that the local high school building was the most adequate and most beautiful high school she had ever seen in a town of its size. The city was also commended on its progressiveness and the fact that a health commissioner was being employed, and that his pay enabled him to do more good than the Duluth health officials. She also stated that she was glad that apparatus for a playground had been secured and she suggested that a supervisor of playgrounds be employed. The pupils were told of their sanitary duties and informed they were important factors in the cleanliness of the city."

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Dr. Batcheller for his ever ready assistance also to our relatives and to the kind neighbors and friends who so willingly assisted us through the sickness and death of our little loved one.

The Childrens Hour

The children at three o'clock adjourned to the park. Surely our park never looked more beautiful than on the afternoon of October 1st. We never sang our Minnesota song so well for each one who could read was provided with a copy through the kindness of Miss Bishop.

Rev. W. J. Lowrie addressed the children, reminding them of the expense the city goes to in making and keeping the park beautiful and that each child should be careful never to injure tree or plant or the carpet of grass. In the park too, all should remember to play kindly and unselfishly.

Mr. Robert Anderson of Milwaukee, then spoke to the children and told them how glad they should be that they live in Brainerd where they have plenty of room to play and have a park besides. He told them of the children in New York City, who sleep in boxes and barrels and how they must play on the roofs of houses and in the streets, many losing their lives thereby.

We practiced a new song, "Our Flag," and then formed a circle about the fountain, joining hands and singing, "My Country 'Tis of Thee." After this all enjoyed a pleasant outdoor time, the youngest members being especially interested in the making and spinning of acorn tops. One member soon after arriving took unexpectedly a complete dip in the fountain, but he showed his loyalty and enthusiasm by soon appearing again dry and smiling.

Among the older people who showed an interest in coming to the park and listening to the exercises were Miss Whiteley and her sister, Mrs. Jager, of St. Paul, Mrs. J. A. Wilson and W. C. Cobb.

Before leaving Mr. Anderson inquired a little more about the children's hour. The city mission feature particularly appealed to him and he contributed generously to our collection box.

There will not be a meeting tomorrow, but it is hoped all members will remember there will be on next Saturday and every two weeks thereafter.

WESTERN UNION NIGHT SERVICE

Inaugurated Today, Messages Being Received From 8 A. M., to 10 P. M.

THANKS DUE SUPT. BRADLEY

Manager D. R. Craig's Assistant is R. C. Nylund—Office Open Dinner and Supper Hour

This morning the Western Union Telegraph Co. inaugurated its new night service and the local office will now be open from eight o'clock in the morning to ten o'clock in the evening. Manager D. R. Craig's face was just beaming with smiles and the whole office had an air of general satisfaction about it when he announced the glad news to the representative of the Brainerd Dispatch, for this extra service means that a score of outside papers at Chicago, Superior, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other points can have their news transmitted promptly over Western Union wires. Service of this kind is appreciated when news regarding elections or calamities like the loss of our electric light plant is desired promptly.

This new service will be appreciated by every business man of the city and there is certain to be a heavy increase in business. The office will now be in a position to handle all business promptly and efficiently. There will be no closing during the dinner or supper hour.

It will enable the company to handle more messages at night letter rates. It will receive not later than 10 p. m., night letters, to be transmitted only for delivery on the morning of the next ensuing business day, at rates still lower than its standard night message rates, as follows: The standard day rate for ten words shall be charged for the transmission of fifty words or less, and one-fifth of such standard day rate for ten words shall be charged for each additional ten words or less.

Manager Craig's assistant is R. C. Nylund, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nylund, who was raised in the service and is a good and efficient operator.

Thanks for this improvement are due Mr. A. D. Bradley, of Minneapolis, who is the new superintendent of the eighth district. He recognized the needs of Brainerd and willingly placed in the assistant operator.

Catches Bridal Bouquet

It was the good fortune of Miss Ruth Barber to catch the bridal bouquet of Mrs. Lawrence Root Elstroff of Helena, Mont., who was until Wednesday evening Miss Ellen Marguerite Judd. The bouquet, which was a shower of white sweet peas and ferns, was worn by the lucky girl at the matinee Thursday and after that it was laid away to be pressed. If within a year the prophetic qualities of the bridal bouquet come true, the wilted and dried flowers will in all probability be placed with other articles, labeled "girlhood treasures." —Minneapolis Journal.

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says Foley's Honey and Tar saved her little boy's life. She writes: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar in which I gave great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." MUSIC AND DRAMA

"The Volunteer Organist"

The plot of William B. Gray's famous pastoral play, "The Volunteer Organist," which is booked for the Brainerd opera house tomorrow, Oct. 8, revolves around a broad minded young clergyman who falls in love with the tavern-keeper's daughter, and who is man enough to stand by the woman he loves in spite of all the petty annoyances and worries cast upon him by his congregation. The climax is reached when the organist and choir refuse to take part in the church services unless the young woman resigns from the choir. The minister calls for a volunteer organist, and a tramp, who has been hanging around the village for some time, responds to the invitation and plays. The tramp turn out to be a long lost brother of the clergyman and happiness is meted out to all deserving it while the wicked are shown the error of their ways. CADETS' TROUBLE

"Silencing" of Captain Longan First Outbreak of Future Army Leaders Since Hazing Expulsions in Sutton Case.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE West Point cadets are in trouble again. This time it is for "silencing" the officer of the day. The last time it was for hazing a "plebe" sentinel and some others. Seven of the boys were then dismissed, and they, or, rather, their friends, vainly bombarded congress for reinstatement. This occurred under President Taft.

During the previous administration several cadets were also dismissed for hazing, but Roosevelt relented and let them go back. That act of mercy is said to have created havoc with discipline at the Military Academy, so there is not likely to be another exhibition of softness. A royal old row broke out over the Roosevelt episode, including some new admissions to membership in the Ananias club.

Inflicting "the silence" on an officer is an immemorial custom at West Point. Yet it has not been resorted to in ten years or so, it is claimed. The officer singled out for the indignity in this instance was Captain Rufus E. Longan of the Eleventh Infantry, a new man at West Point. As officer of the day it was Captain Longan's called as witnesses, the confinement to rooms in barracks of the entire cadet body being continued.

LIKE OLD TIMES

Roosevelt's Clemency Said to Have Created Havoc in Discipline at West Point, So Last Steels His Heart to Pleas.

There have been various stories of the cause of the unpleasantness. Captain Longan ascribed it to the fact that during the punishment tours he had refused to permit the culprits to walk out their sentences under cover during a drizzle of rain. It is the custom in the academy for the men to do the punishment tours out of doors in fair weather, but to march up and down the galleries in doors if the weather is inclement.

In other words, they are supposed to have enough sense to go in when it rains. Captain Longan did not consider the drizzle of sufficient importance to call off the game because of wet grounds, however; hence the boys concluded to take it out on the umpire.

There are other whispers, however. The cadets naturally are not in a position to do much talking, but stray scraps of conversation have leaked out to the effect that Longan has proved himself a needlessly strict disciplinarian, that he ordered one boy out of hospital because he had not reported of the court martial and congress refused to reverse it. It was a pathetic scene when the seven took their "last supper" in Grant hall. Although disgraced, they were among the most popular cadets in the institution. Now, for one act of boyish folly they were to go forth under a cloud, denied their chosen career and perhaps handicapped for life.

No demonstration occurred at the tables or after Handclaps and low spoken words alone marked the last act of the tragedy—for it was a tragedy to the whole student body. Sutton included. To be expelled from West Point is as much of a blow to the cadet as stripping off his epaulets and breaking his sword is to an officer.

Rather a high price to pay for a mid night frolic! Yet an army without discipline would be like a government without laws. It would fall apart like a rope of sand.

In the old days—and the old days were not as good as the present ones, whatever sentimentalists, fossils and pessimists may say to the contrary—in the old days hazing was much more prevalent at West Point than now. For a "plebe," more fondly and frequently called a "beast," his first year answered literally to General Sherman's definition of war. The upper class men went on the theory that it was necessary to knock off the newcomer's rough edges, and they did it with a thoroughness that was positively raw.

Torturing Schemes Numerous.

Among the most ordinary forms of hazing was "cagling," which consisted in standing on one's toes, extending the arms like wings and by bending the knees and hips squatting successfully—oh, say, a hundred times.

Another favorite form was the "wooden willie," consisting of an infinite number of difficult evolutions with a gun, such as holding it out straight at arms' length and doing other fearful and wonderful stunts which would make one's muscles ache even to think about. This was kept up until the upper class men were satisfied or the victim felt exhausted.

Among the more unusual methods of torment was that of gathering ants, say 100, accounting for all of them, then placing them in the victim's locker. Usually the plebe's cap was the first receptacle of the ants, and, while it was not stipulated that the cap must be worn, cadets are not supposed to go about the parade grounds at West Point bareheaded. This little item of ant gathering was brought out in an inquiry in 1908 when eight bazers were dismissed from the academy, only to be reinstated later by President Roosevelt.

There are two sides to the story, however, as is usually the case with things human. Many good men familiar with army life and with the Military Academy have defended hazing at West Point on the theory that it made men out of the new students. Among the stunts imposed by the upper class men were various forms of bracing and exercising which were really beneficial, giving the "beast" a more erect carriage, hardening his muscles, teaching him to obey orders and generally licking him into shape.

Good For Swelled Craniums.

Another good effect of the hazing system was to reduce any bump of conceit that might have developed in the "beast's" head. For example, if he were "his father's son," being the offspring of a senator, a general, a governor or a somebody, he might have imbibed an undue idea of his own importance from the parental greatness. Just about two weeks of West Point takes that out of the highest born. If at the end of the period the plebe does not look upon himself as a worm it is not the fault of the upper class men.

A member of the West Point class of 1870 now an officer of high rank in active service tells this story about the first day in plebe camp of Frederick Dent Grant, son of Ulysses.

An upper classman bent on nothing else than having some fun with the son of the famous general asked him on his advent into camp, while he was still wearing the clothes of civil life, "Which do you think is the greater man, General George Washington or General Ulysses S. Grant?"

Fred's answer, blunt and quick, was, "Washington may have been the greater man, but my father was the greater soldier."

Grant Was Game.

"Mr. Grant," said the upper classman, "to compare your father to George Washington in any sense is like unto the comparing of a plucked hen to the American eagle."

Then there followed a fight, but it was stopped almost instantly by some first classmen because the place was too public.

Other stories in kind are told of the son of Phil Sheridan and many more. One of the harmless forms of hazing is in making the "beasts" look ridiculous. Here is a sample:

"Who are you?" asks a first year man of a plebe.

"Mr. Smith, sir."

"Who are you?" is repeated.

"Mr. Smith, sir."

"Who are you?" a third time.

"Nothing, sir."

"Right. Who does a plebe rank?"

"A hell cat (meaning the life and drum man that wakes 'em up in the morning), a waiter and a waiter's dog."

That course of treatment would certainly reduce any swelled head that was not made of solid ivory.

TEACH BOYS TO LOVE FARMING

Dubuque, Ia., Starts Fight Against Lure of City.

RURAL JOYS SCHOOL'S COURSE

Elementary Scientific Farming Taught, and Summers Are Spent in Educational Camping Trips—Entire Nation Watches Experiment as Possible Solution of Modern Problem.

Dubuque, Ia., has instituted an active fight against the "lure of the city," which is drawing boys from the farms in small towns to the large centers of population. A school has been established where youngsters from twelve to sixteen years old can live out of doors, learn the practical lessons of the farm and at the same time follow the same course of "book study" pursued in other schools.

This institution is called "Park Life" and was founded two years ago by Professor B. J. Horchem of Dubuque as an experiment. The plan is to train young boys along useful, interesting and healthful lines, to keep them busy throughout the year and to instill in them a real love for out of door life and, above all, for productive occupations.

Boys Taught Farming.

All the work of the school centers about "the farm," where the boys are taught the simple elements of scientific farming, how to raise the different varieties of garden truck and how and when to plant the staple crops, such as wheat, corn, rye and barley. The boys also are taught about cattle, sheep and poultry.

In addition to this, the school grounds must be kept up and the youthful farmers get experience in agricultural engineering, such as ditch and well digging, road building and irrigation.

In the summer the boys live in tents, cooking their own food and occasionally taking a "hike" to places of interest. Once every summer a longer trip is taken. In 1909 the boys went to the Delta of Wisconsin. Last August twelve of them, under the guidance of Professor Horchem, went to Chicago. They stayed four days, seeing the city from one end to the other. They were greatly impressed and returned home full of reports of the wonderful things they had seen, but at the same time glad to "get back to the farm."

Have School Work Too.

All this activity is carried on in addition to the regular school work. The boys are instructed in all the regular courses of study.

"The object of the school," says Professor Horchem, "is to instill into the boys a genuine love for the farm. We are trying to counteract influences that are drawing the country boys to the big cities. There is no doubt that the cities have a strong attraction for young America, and the way to counteract it is to bring the boys up to love the country. Our boys are interested in the work and are busy all the time. That, I think, is the solution of the 'boy problem.'"

The school is attracting interest all over the country, and Dubuque people are satisfied with the promise of the new departure.

BECAME RICH OVERNIGHT.

Viscount Chelsea Bankrupt Until Nephew Died Suddenly.

The death of little Viscount Chelsea in England provided one of those strange changes in a man's fortunes that occur very seldom. Lord Chelsea died four days after his uncle, the Hon. Gerald Cadogan, appeared in the bankruptcy court.

Mr. Cadogan then told the official receiver that he had no expectations, as bankruptcy forfeited all interest in his father's estates, so he could make no definite proposals to his creditors.

This was on a Monday, but on the following Friday the Hon. Gerald Cadogan found himself Viscount Chelsea and heir to an income well over a half million dollars a year.

Twenty-four hours before he succeeded to the dukedom of Portland the present holder of the title was a hard up lieutenant in a regiment in India. He had been born a distant relative of the then master of Welbeck, and there were several healthy lives between him and the title.

Death, however, removed in rapid succession several persons who stood between him and the title, and from a junior officer he rose to an English dukedom and vast wealth.

AFTER HUMAN HAIR MATTRESS

Paris Stirred by Man Who Takes Tresses by Force.

Not content with horse hair for his mattresses, a certain foreigner has been inviting Parisiennes to sell their tresses at fair prices, later to be made into the softest kind of mattress.

The man's bids have not been answered, but he has from time to time helped himself by inviting unsuspecting girls to dinner, drugging them and then cutting off their hair. He now has quite a collection of human hair for his mattress, and the police are searching for him.

AMBIDEXTERITY DEVELOPER OF UNUSED BRAIN POWER.

Germany Starts Movement to Recover Lost Faculty.

A movement has been started in Germany for the cultivation of ambidexterity. The idea is that developing the power to use both hands equally well means developing the intelligence in general and the memory in particular.

It is said to have been scientifically ascertained that, while right handed people have the organ of speech on the left side of the brain, and vice versa, people who are ambidextrous have two language centers, one in each lobe of the brain. The infant begins life with two speech centers, but as the right hand is generally trained and the left neglected, the right speech center gradually grows torpid and useless.

The extraordinary claim is now made that by the cultivation of the left hand the capacity of the right speech center of the brain can be revived, and to that extent broaden the intelligence, ambidexterity increases the use of the human being's mind.

Instances are quoted by supporters of the movement in which practicing the left hand has rescued a power of speech until then paralyzed. One patient in question was stricken by paralysis of the left organ of speech and with it paralysis of the left hand. The doctors started teaching the patient to write with the left hand, with the astonishing result that in a short time the power of speech was awakened in the hitherto torpid organ of speech.

An even more astonishing case was that of a boy who at the age of thirteen lost his left hand, but soon learned to do fairly well with an artificial member. At the age of thirty he suffered a stroke of paralysis which robbed him of the power of speech, but by means of a small ring with a pen attached to it fixed to the artificial limb he could practice writing and thus not only recovered power over his original speech, but over French and Russian, which he had forgotten.

As a matter of fact, ambidexterity is necessary in several professions and occupations, of which surgery and piano playing may be given as examples.

PONTIAC TREATY RECALLED.

Edgar, Ill., to Have Shaft Marking Important Event.

One of the momentous events of American colonial history shortly will be memorialized in granite, citizens of Edgar, in Edgar county, Ill., joining in the erection of a shaft on which will be placed the following:

"Near here, July 18, A. D. 1765, Colonel George Croghan, deputy superintendent of Indian affairs for the British government, made a preliminary treaty of peace with Pontiac, chief of the Ottawas and leader of the great Indian confederacy. By the terms of this agreement the allegiance of the Indians was transferred from the French to the English, thus obtaining the eastern Mississippi valley for the Anglo-Saxon civilization."

An empire that stretched from New York westward along the great lakes and down the Mississippi as far as New Orleans was acquired by the British from the French. The dedication of the monument, marking the place where the preliminary steps leading to this gigantic exchange were taken, doubtless will prove an event of interest to the historian and will mark an epoch of great importance to the English speaking world.

SHARKS SHOT BY WATER.

German Invents Device to Aid Divers From Foes.

When he is working in water infested by sharks and other sea monsters likely to do him harm, the diver has at present to rely for his safety on the use of the knife, or, failing that, on a quick return to the surface.

Now comes the invention of Captain Grobl, a German diving instructor, who has constructed a rifle which can be fired under water and is designed for the better arming of the diver.

The most remarkable thing about this is that it fires, not bullets, but water, which is propelled with such force that it has an extraordinary power of penetration. Indeed, the inventor himself has pierced armor plate of medium thickness with the water jet from his weapon. The rifle has a stout barrel and is loaded with a cartridge case in india rubber.

Experiments were made in the sixties with a submarine rifle firing small explosive projectiles by means of compressed air, but the invention never got beyond the experimental stage and no details of it are to be had.

HOPES TO REFOREST MAINE.

Prizes Offered For Best Growths Every Eighteen Years.

A plan for the reforestation of Maine has been submitted to the governor by B. C. Jordan of Alfred. Mr. Jordan offers to give the state $1,000 on condition that once in eighteen years five prizes shall be awarded for the five best lots of young forest growth.

These lots are to consist of not less than ten acres, accurately surveyed and plotted, the majority of the trees to be not less than ten or more than thirty feet high and not less than ten or more than thirty years old when the prizes are awarded. The varieties of trees cover a long list from white pine to elm.

Mr. Jordan believes that the incentive afforded by such prizes would do much to bring about better forestry conditions. Maine has many thousands acres of waste land, now almost worthless, but naturally well adapted to timber growth, and which by a small expense for care and forest cultivation could be made easily worth in fifty years $100 an acre.

In this way the state, instead of being of the poorest in the Union, might be made one of the richest. Mr. Jordan himself set out from 10,000 to 15,000 trees the last summer and states that he hopes to set out many thousands every year as long as he lives.

MAJOR GENERAL THOMAS H. BARRY, SOME OF HIS REBELLIOUS WEST POINT CADET CORPS' AND THE LIBRARY BUILDING.

duty to be present in the cadets' dining room at meals. The moment he entered the door every cadet ceased conversation and eating. This is called "the silence."

"Silenced" One Is Game.

One can imagine the scene—an immense dining room containing forty tables with ten men at each table, all dumb and motionless by a common impulse. Slightly disconcerting for a young officer who realized that it was all meant for him.

"I knew in a flash what was happening," Captain Longan said later, and he grinned broadly as he spoke, "for I helped to do the same thing to an officer while I was in the academy. Seriously, however, they were just putting me to the test; I was new, and they wanted to find out what sort I was."

They found out, for Captain Longan instantly called them to attention and dismissed them. Then he reported the matter to headquarters. As a result every mother's son of the cadet corps was placed under virtual arrest, barring a few in the hospital, and a "hop" scheduled for the evening was called off. The young ladies of the community were left with a hopeless and "hopless" season in prospect. The football practice was perforce abandoned, although a game was scheduled in the near future. The shoe was on the other foot. The officers were putting something more than a "silence" on the cadets.

The next morning Captain Longan was again greeted by a cessation of talk and eating, but only three tables participated in this "silence." The instant call of attention and dismissal followed, and double quick was ordered, much to the discomfort of a number of cadets who by this time were "some hungry" and had concealed a liberal supply of toast and plums in their blouses. Double quick is a rather hazy kind of march and after it was over there was a fine assortment of toast and plums strewn along the way.

Inquiry Is Prompt.

At the evening meal Captain Longan was no longer officer of the day, and the boys could get a "square" meal once more. Perhaps never in the history of the world were 400 as voracious appetites gathered together in one room.

It was the second "silence" that precipitated the court of inquiry. The thirty cadets participating in it were on his return from furlough and generally that the new captain had a "swelled head" which it was necessary to reduce.

Certainly there must have been some unusual cause to make 400 hungry young Americans go without three meals, to say nothing of facing a season without dances and football and daring the possibility of expulsion for some of their number.

Booz Case Is Famous.

This is not exactly a parallel case to the various hazing escapades that have made West Point famous and on a few occasions have narrowly escaped making it infamous. Perhaps the most celebrated of these was the affair of Cadet Booz, who died after being made the victim of a rather brutal hazing episode, and his friends charged that his death was the direct result of the injuries then received. From the testimony given
